

Chloe Morgan, SLP
Speech-Language Pathologist

M.Ed., CCC-SLP

Masters in Communication Disorders from North Carolina Central University

Chloe earned her B.S. in Speech-Hearing Sciences from East Carolina University and her M.Ed. in Communication Sciences and Disorders from North Carolina Central University. She received her Graduate Assistive Technology Certificate from East Carolina University, where she can evaluate and help individuals in finding a device to help in communicating. Chloe has a variety of experiences working with all ages in educational, medical, home, and private clinic settings. She enjoys using family-coaching interventions and implementing strategies into their child's daily routines in order to maximize their potential. She has experience working with Autism, cleft lip and palate, genetic syndromes, feeding/swallowing disorders, sensory processing disorders, neonatal abstinence syndrome, apraxia, and developmental delays. Chloe and her fiancé are new to the area and live in Sandy Springs, GA.